Message from the President

This has been a particularly active year at our university and I would like to thank our students, faculty and staff who have all contributed to the development of Concordia on many levels.

Our students continue to be at the heart of Concordia's success. Concordia students were leaders in the recent Youth Summit and instrumental in the awarding of an honorary doctorate to Al Gore. The Concordia student body also adopted a unique fund for sustainability efforts on campus. This year saw another successful Art Matters festival and fantastic success from our JMSB students in undergraduate competitions across North America and abroad. Our Engineering students are engaged in groundbreaking work and the students in Arts & Science are involved in issues across the broad spectrum of the liberal arts, humanities and sciences. Concordia's student body has assured that Concordia is seen as a dynamic, innovative and involved university.

Concordia is also a growing concern. As you may have noticed, excavation of the site for the new home for our John Molson School of Business began in January. This is a historic moment for everyone at Concordia and especially for our business school. The opening of the new JMSB building in 2009 will be yet another in a series of magnificent new facilities and refurbished buildings that we have completed over the last few years on both our Sir George Williams and Loyola Campuses.

Our students, professors and researchers now enjoy state-of-the-art facilities at the Richard J. Renaud Science Complex and the refurbished and expanded Communication Studies and Journalism Building on the Loyola Campus. On the downtown Sir George Williams Campus, the spectacular new Engineering, Computer Science and Visual Arts Integrated Complex, the renovation of the Henry F. Hall Building, the purchase and the preliminary-stage occupation of the Grey Nuns' property and the initiation of our Quartier Concordia project are all giant steps towards the creation of a top-tier university. However, the real story of Concordia is what happens in the classroom. Concordia continues to provide innovative teaching and research to a growing student body. We are educating the leaders of tomorrow who are going to make an impact on the future of our country and our world.

On behalf of the faculty and staff of this great institution, let me thank you for your contribution to Concordia and let me welcome you to the larger Concordia family that includes more than 120,000 alumni worldwide. We hope that you will join the Concordia Alumni Association and be an active part of Concordia's future.

Good luck to all of you in your careers and we hope that you will proudly carry your association with Concordia.

Claude Lajeunesse

President, Concordia University

Dear Graduates,

Your years of dedicated hard work have brought you to this momentous occasion. We, at the Dean of Students Office, are proud to have been a part of your university life. We wish you continued success as you progress towards your aspirations. We hope your experience at Concordia will remain with you as a source of inspiration and comfort. We celebrate this milestone with you and we look forward to hearing about your future endeavors.

Congratulations on your graduation,

Dean of Students Office

CONCORDIA UNIVERSITY HISTORY

Concordia University as we know it today is the result of the 1974 merger of Loyola College and Sir George Williams University. But Concordia's roots go far beyond the time of the merger. Concordia has built upon the solid foundations and proud traditions of its two founding institutions.

Concordia's Roots

Sir George Williams University, one of the founding institutions of Concordia University, had its origins in the Montreal YMCA.

George Williams founded the YMCA in London in 1844. The Montreal YMCA, the first in North America, was established in 1851, and soon after this it initiated evening classes as an important part of its community outreach. These quickly grew into an ambitious education program. The program expanded in both scope and size, and by 1926 the Educational Department became the co-educational Sir George Williams College. By 1936 Sir George Williams offered a full four-year College program for both day and evening students, and the first degrees were awarded in 1936-37. The College experienced dramatic growth and public recognition of its degrees in the 1940s and 1950s. In 1948 Sir George Williams College received its official university charter, although it did not change its name to Sir George Williams University until 1959. Graduate programs began at Sir George in 1965.

Loyola College, also a founding institution of Concordia University, had its origins in the Jesuit-owned Collège Ste-Marie.

Collège Ste-Marie/St. Mary's College offered both a French and an English-language program when it opened in 1848, and it initiated a separate English classical program in 1888. The program evolved into Loyola College, which opened its doors in 1896 as a separate Jesuit-owned entity, an English-language institution within Quebec's collège classique tradition. In the 1920s Loyola moved away from the collège classique model and the College and the High School programs became distinct, though they remained connected for many decades. By the 1940s all traces of the classical college tradition were gone and the College program was in the North American four-year university tradition. Loyola became co-educational in 1959. Loyola fought hard over the years to obtain its own university charter, but it never achieved university status. Loyola's degrees were awarded through an agreement with Université Laval, and later Université de Montréal.

In 1974 Loyola College and Sir George Williams University merged to create Concordia University.

Loyola Campus Buildings

Loyola College began operations in 1896 in the former Sacred Heart Convent at the southeast corner of Bleury and Ste-Catherine (approximately where the Spectrum is now). A fire destroyed the building in 1898, and Loyola moved to Drummond near Ste-Catherine, into the building of the former Tucker School that was on the site where the LaSalle Hotel (now the Hotel Europa) was later built.

Loyola College built its first buildings and moved to the present west-end campus in 1916. A grand building plan was conceived for the campus in 1913. But money was scarce and buildings were built only as funding became available, and the master plan was amended and greatly simplified over the years. The original buildings were the Junior (now Psychology) Building, the Refectory, and a smaller and shorter version of the Administration Building. By the 1940s the Administration Building had been expanded to its present size and the Central Building, the Chapel, and the Arena/Rink buildings were added, all in the original architectural style.

In the 1960s a new campus development plan was launched to meet exploding enrolment. Loyola broke completely from the original master plan and building style and built several buildings in a more contemporary style: Drummond Science Complex (now Communication Arts/Journalism Building, Hingston Hall, the Vanier Library, a new Athletic Complex, the Bryan Building, and the Campus Centre. There was little building activity in the years after the merger as Concordia consolidated its services and facilities.

Concordia's first building projects on the Loyola Campus were the expansion of the Vanier Library in 1989 and the building of the Oscar Peterson Concert Hall in 1990. The Richard J. Renaud Science Pavilion was officially inaugurated in 2003, providing Concordia with state-of-the-art research and teaching facilities for the sciences for the first time since the 1960s.

Plans are underway to renovate and update virtually all the older buildings on the Loyola Campus over the next decade, and to expand the athletics facilities. The revitalized Loyola campus is a dynamic part of Concordia and it continues its long-time role as an important presence in the west end of Montreal.

Communication Studies & Journalism Building

The Drummond Science Complex has undergone a $20 million major renovation and expansion following "green" principles, and it re-opened in September 2005 to house the departments of Journalism and Communication Studies.

The new building is a huge step forward for the Journalism and Communication Studies programs. The 30-year old Department of Journalism began in a converted downtown apartment building, moved to a converted elementary school in 1982, then to the Bryan Building in 1986, and most recently to temporary facilities in Hingston Hall. The new building replaces outmoded facilities in the Bryan Building, which was built in 1968 and was the long-time home of Communication Studies.

The Bryan Building included professional technical facilities designed for teaching in the fledgling Communication Arts Department that was founded in 1965 and renamed Communication Studies in 1977. The fully equipped TV studio and control room, film projection and editing rooms, radio and recording studios were considered a bold step forward for an academic program in the 1960s, and the facilities were instrumental in establishing the program as innovative and progressive. The Bryan Building was renovated for offices and teaching facilities, and since 2003 it has been integrated with and forms part of the Richard J. Renaud Science Pavillion. Concordia's master building plan and the revitalization of the Loyola Campus cleared the way for a complete overhaul and updating of the Drummond Science Complex to provide updated and appropriate quarters for the Communication Studies and Journalism Departments that were displaced from the Bryan Building.

The external envelope of the Drummond Complex was replaced and the interior was completely renovated. The new facilities have been designed to integrate cutting-edge technology into the teaching and research spaces. Facilities include new studios, an entirely digitized radio and television broadcast operation, network access and hi-tech classrooms, new media and computer labs, and a full array of high-end audiovisual equipment, including production, video, and editing suites.

Sir George Williams Campus Buildings

The YMCA building on Victoria Square (long since demolished) was the first in Montreal built by and for the YMCA, and it was in this building that the educational program flourished between 1873 and 1891. As space demands grew the Y built a larger building on Dominion Square (now Square Dorchester), where the Sun Life Building now stands. They remained there from 1892 until 1912 when the Y and its programs again outgrew the building. A new facility on Drummond Street was opened in 1912, and a 12-storey annex was added to it in 1930-31. The College was originally housed on the third floor of the Drummond Building, but soon expanded to any available space, and to many nearby rented facilities. The space situation for Sir George Williams was critical by the 1940s. With funding from a capital campaign the Norris Building was built in 1956 as a dedicated SGW facility adjacent to the Drummond Street Y building. An addition was added in 1959, but space demands already outstripped available facilities.

The Hall Building opened in 1966; that year there was a formal and final separation between SGW and the YMCA. Gradually Sir George's academic and administrative departments shifted west towards the Hall Building. Once again many surrounding annexes were rented to keep up with growing enrolment. SGW continued to occupy the Norris Building until 1992. In 1980 the Visual Arts Building housing Fine Arts facilities opened in a completely renovated former garage/car dealership.

Concordia's first building project on the SGW Campus was the long-awaited Webster Library in the McConnell Building that opened in 1992. It provided desperately needed library facilities as well as administrative and teaching space.

In the 1990s the University developed a bold strategic plan to meet changing space needs and manage growth over the coming decades. The public face of Concordia in Downtown Montreal has changed and will continue to change with new buildings, renovation of existing facilities, and a move to university-owned rather than rented facilities. Existing buildings are being renovated and new buildings have been built. Concordia purchased the Grey Nuns Motherhouse property in 2004 and will occupy the buildings in stages, beginning in the summer of 2007. The downtown campus will be consolidated into the area bordered generally by Sherbrooke, Guy, René-Lévesque, and Bishop. Concordia will partner with the City of Montreal to create specialized signage and urban design to create "Quartier Concordia," a distinct urban identity for the Sir George Williams Campus and its surroundings.

Engineering and Computer Science and Visual Arts Integrated Complex

In September 2005 the new Engineering and Computer Science and Visual Arts Integrated Complex on Ste-Catherine between Guy and Mackay opened its doors. This new complex is a forward-looking mix of interconnected Engineering and Visual Arts facilities. The two towers of the complex are completely integrated with links at every floor and a common corridor. The building design facilitates joint research projects and academic programs for Engineering and Computer Science and the Visual Arts.

Views from the many windows and terraces are stunning. The exterior of the building includes a magnificent glass mural created by Nicolas Baier, the largest work thus far created as part of the Government of Quebec art integration policy. A tunnel connects the complex to the Guy-Concordia metro station. The complex is a striking addition to the western end of Downtown and it makes a strong statement of Concordia's ongoing and important presence in Montreal's downtown core.

The fitness and recreation center in the underground levels of the building opened in September 2006 and additional facilities became available in January 2007.

This first two years of occupancy have involved settling in and fine-tuning, as is to be expected with a new building with such specialized facilities and a high level of complex built-in technology.

The Engineering and Computer Science tower houses research and graduate teaching labs, as well as administrative offices. (Undergraduate teaching remains in the Hall Building.) The new tower integrates a large part of the Faculty in a single space, a marked contrast from the many disparate locations in which it was housed for many years. The specialized facilities foster effective interaction of researchers within the Faculty.

The tower is seventeen storeys high with a mezzanine and two basement levels. It includes over 300 specialized labs, six conference rooms, seventeen meeting rooms, several student lounges and common areas, as well as three terraces. The concentration of heavy laboratories is in the basement, wet-physical laboratories are on the top floors, and dry computer laboratories are on the middle floors. Student Services and the Dean's Office are located on the second floor for easy access and IT is centrally located on the seventh floor. The move to new facilities has also meant new furniture ($1.2 million), computers ($500,000) and audiovisual equipment ($500,000).

The Visual Arts tower is twelve storeys high with two basement levels. It includes teaching and research facilities and the Dean's Office. Academic departments include some of the Studio Arts such as Print Media, Fibres, Photography, Design and Computational Arts, as well as Art History. The freshly launched Intermedia /Cyberarts program (IMCA) is housed in the new building, offering wide-ranging interdisciplinary studies that combine media arts and new technologies.

The Visual Arts tower includes much improved facilities and equipment for traditional media but it also offers access to cutting edge digital technologies that are organized so they can be easily integrated into the creative process. Media labs provide access to the latest multimedia technology.

The Concordia branch of Hexagram, the Institute for Research/Creation in Media Arts and Technologies, occupies the tenth and eleventh floors of the Visual Arts tower. Hexagram was launched in 2001 to encourage Concordia and Université du Québec to combine their research efforts in the areas where art and technology meet. External funding financed the specialized facilities and equipment such as a computerized fibres loom, robotics machinery and a sophisticated replicator that can create unusual physical objects that are designed within special computer programs.

On January 15, 2007 excavation began for the new home of the John Molson School of Business on the southwest corner of Guy and de Maisonneuve. The new 15-storey building with specialized facilities will open in 2009. As it has for more than a hundred years, Concordia continues to be an important part of the Montreal landscape while it builds specialized facilities to meet the constantly evolving needs of its teaching and research mission.

Concordia Gets a New Logo

On January 18, 2007 the Concordia Board of Governors approved a new university logo. It was the culmination of a year of work that began with a comprehensive study that examined how the institution was perceived both internally and externally. An internal group of graphic designers and two outside design teams designed the new logo to match the perception of Concordia as a daring, approachable, and engaged university that is diverse and committed to high standards of learning and research.

Founding institutions Loyola College and Sir George Williams University had many logos through their long history, but since the 1974 merger that created Concordia there have been only three previous logos one in 1974, another in 1978, and the last introduced in 1988.

The new logo contains elements from the Concordia Coat of Arms that represent Concordia's mission and history: the open book, a symbol associated with Concordia founding institution Sir George Williams University; the YMCA triangle representing body, mind and spirit, and referring to the early beginnings of Concordia; and the rising sun of knowledge, an important Jesuit symbol that refers to founding institution Loyola College. The new logo combines these traditional elements within a modern new look, combining pride in the past and confidence in the future.

The new logo is in the Concordia colours of garnet and gold. The red is a deep burgundy and the font used for the University's name in English and French was designed exclusively for Concordia.

With the increasing gloom of planetary catastrophe looming ever nearer, it's easy for anyone to lose hope for the future. Sustainable Concordia has, however, adopted the philosophy that in cutting loose at the "visioning retreat" or crawling through bags of waste to see what Concordia throws out, there is always a good time to be had. SC (or Suscon) was started in 2002 as a subgroup of Qpirg Concordia and now comprises several umbrella groups including R4, Allego and The Sustainable Ambassador Program. Concrete Toboggan Competition

The TOP GUN's of engineering. It takes a few brave engineers to innovate and design a toboggan based on a specific theme. These brave souls are willing to jump into a toboggan made out of a metal frame that has a runningsurface made completely out of concrete, that can also travel at approximately 50-60 km/h. Sometimes they conquer the hill; this year, they did not.

Zeta Tau Omega

ZTO is the oldest local sorority in Canada, having been founded in 1967 at Loyola College.

Our sorority was formed for the purpose of promoting good fellowship among women, philanthropy, community service events, a supportive home environment, and true feelings of sisterly love.

As we grow together, we take pride in the strengths and character that each sister contributes and as a sisterhood we strive to encourage each other to meet and exceed the excellence that every sister possesses.

Delta Pi Epsilon

Delta Pi Epsilon develops a social consciousness and a commitment to think and act for the greater good. We assure continuous development and achievement for women by embracing our founding principles of justice, sisterhood, and love.

Tau Kappa Epsilon

Founded in 1967, older than Concordia University itself, the Kappa Chi Chapter of the Tau Kappa Epsilon Fraternity is celebrating 40 years of active life in our Community, with over 500 members already on their scroll. The Chapter is known for being an active member of the Greek Community in Concordia, engaging in several fundraisers over the year aimed towards different Charities. Their traditional and most famous yearly fundraiser, "Teke in a Box", has raised over 10,000 $ in a 36-hour period for causes as relevant as Muscular Dystrophy Canada. The brothers attend leadership seminars and organize varied events and parties throughout the year, as well as visiting other chapters and colonies throughout Canada and the United States and hosting those who drive up to Montreal. The Kappa Chi chapter is the oldest Chapter of Tau Kappa Epsilon in Canada.

Spiritual Awareness Fellowship

SAF provides a forum to discuss and unravel the spiritual teachings of east and west. This club is unique in that it recognizes the contribution of many saints, sages and adepts who have strived to bring love, enlightenment and justice to the world. Ultimately, SAF promotes the path of initiation to higher consciousness for the Aquarian age.

Frontier College is a nation-wide volunteer-based non-profit literacy organization that works with adults and children, responding to their learning needs and encouraging lifelong learning. At Concordia University, Frontier College has an Organizational Team that makes every effort to reach out to children and adults around the city by recruiting and training new volunteer tutors each semester and by organizing fundraising and awareness events to promote literacy.

Graduate Students Association

The Graduate Students' Association (GSA) is the sole representative of all the graduate students at Concordia. Its mandate is concerned with serving the graduate students and creating value for them. This year team of GSA's executives has harvested valuable experience, contributed to the graduate students' community, and recommended necessary changes to the body.

The GSA offers representatives and graduate students, who would like to be active in students' affairs, the opportunity to build a strong portfolio in governance. The GSA is represented on many University committees. These committees are pivotal to insuring good governance at Concordia. Also, the GSA body is a democratically functioning body and offers the students a medium to discuss and present important projects that would create value for the graduate students.

The GSA, this year, initiated a new activity that was successful. Knowing the demographics of the graduate students' population at Concordia, one cannot ignore the number of international students. Hence, the GSA thought about having an international student day geared towards graduate students. The turnout at the event was remarkable and it gave us an insight for similar projects in the future.

The representatives of the GSA have found some anomalies within the GSA bylaws and the structure of the GSA. Hence, we recommended amending the bylaws. More than one item within the bylaws should be amended. For instance, the representation on the council is not proportional to student population within the faculties. Also certain elements within the bylaws need to be clarified. Also some restructuring within the GSA would result in more value produced to the students and should be pursued.

The Concordia Community Solidarity Co-op Bookstore, a not-for-profit book emporium, has been a part of the campus community since 2002, now in its fifth year. A group of devoted members, students and non-students alike, have made this little bookstore into the “little bookstore that could”. Providing an alternative haven for books and curios alike. Offering free services such as individual ordering, used-textbook sales and consignment of hand-made wares, to mention a few. All this, and not-for-profit prices. Les Fleurs du Mal: Montreal's Newest Art Mag

Les Fleurs du Mal is a magazine focusing on emerging art and artists primarily in the Montreal area, as well as on news, topics and issues in the fine arts.

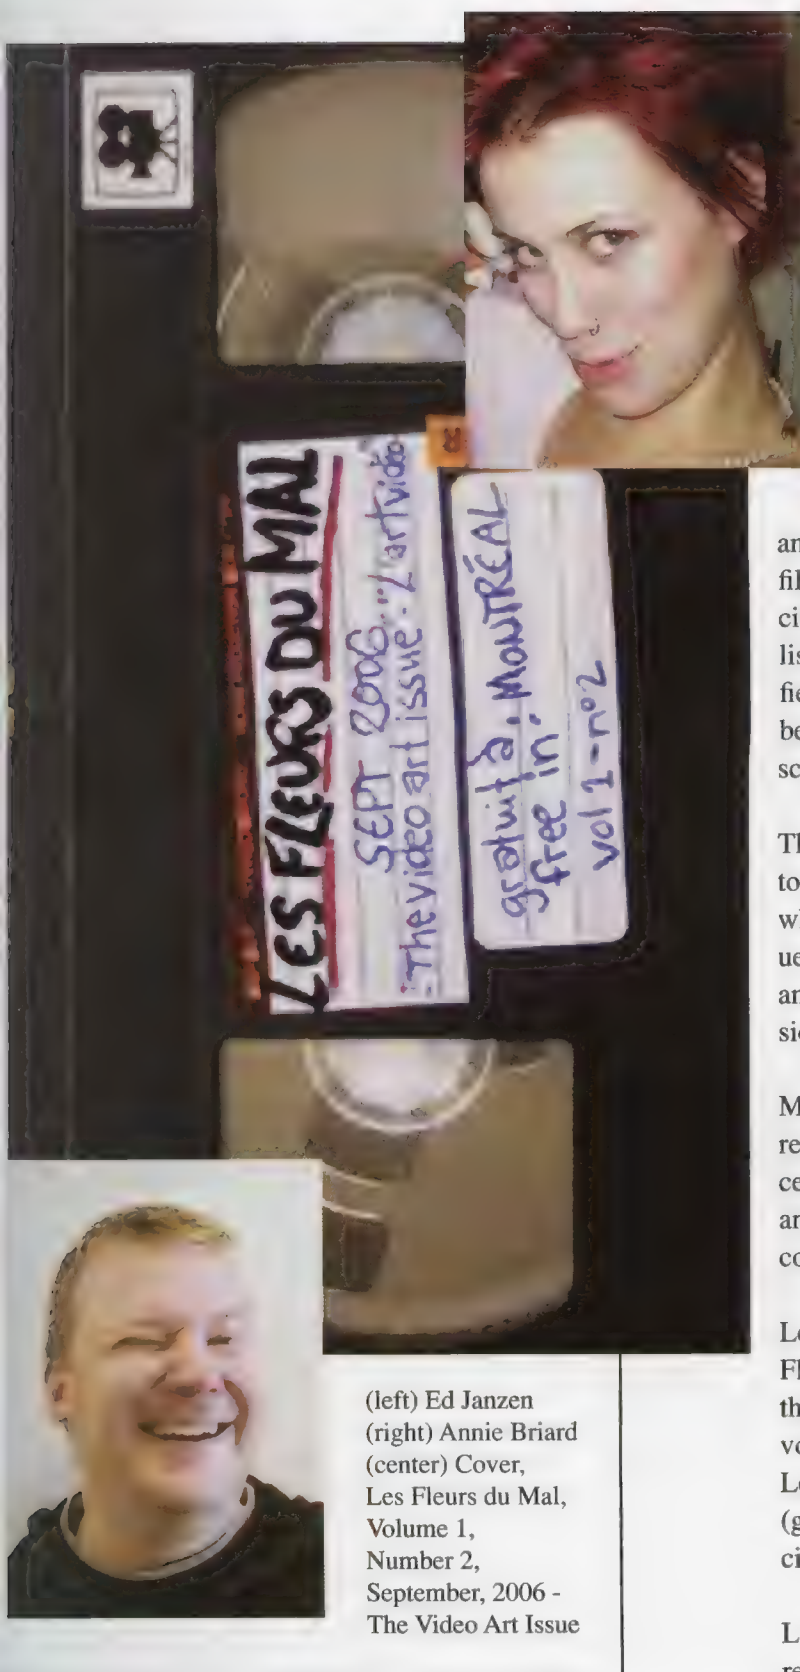

Our first issue, released in March, 2006, showcased journalistic, researched feature articles, profiles of practicing artists and their work, reviews of art shows and reproductions of selected works by artists we choose to profile. Our second issue, released September, 2006, focused specifically on video art and featured articles by novice and established authors alike, as well as profiles of artists practicing in the field of video. "The Video Issue" has received wide acclaim, has been distributed at a variety of local festivals and has been prescribed as curricular reading by several video art professors.

The magazine was born when Ed decided he wanted to put his editorial skills back to work in order to leave a mark on Montreal, and when Annie saw yet another way to put her ideas about creating venues for art into action. With both of us widely interested in politics, and seeing art as a means to discuss these notions publicly, we envisioned a magazine as a way to do just that.

Montreal has publications that feature artists and venues that are already well known, but the city remains largely unserved by easy-access art publications that focus on emerging artists and their work, and which are artist-run. So, we knew it was an idea whose time had come.

Les Fleurs du Mal is published on an occasional basis by the Les Fleurs du Mal Publications Society, a student club recognized under the Fine Arts Student Alliance. The magazine is produced entirely by volunteer labour. We accept submissions in both English and French. Les Fleurs du Mal is distributed free of charge at selected locations (galleries, artist-run centres, universities, libraries, restaurants, cafes, cinemas, etc.) throughout central Montreal.

Look for issue number three in June, 2007, in which we explore the realm of interactive art!

SASU

This year saw an entirely new and passionate executive get together to reinvigorate a student association that had been relatively inactive since 2004. The year started off with a visibility campaign that included a survey of the student body and an inaugural Wine and Cheese party. By April, SASU had sponsored major student initiatives like the Ethnographic Film Festival and the publication of Stories from Montreal: Ethnographic Accounts from North America's Fran- cophone Metropolis, organized a trip to Quebec City, co-hosted two Interdisciplinary Faculty-Student Colloquiums with the Geography Department, took part in coordinating a workshop on the transition to graduate studies, held the presentation and panel discussion event Sexualities on the Move to promote the research of students in the department, and was issuing weekly e-newsletters to its 1900 students who welcomed it with great enthusiasm. In March, SASU received the ASFA Award for Most Outstanding Association.

The Concordia Egyptian Student Association (CESA) was revived in the 2003-2004 academic year. In addition to uniting students with Egyptian origins and connecting them to their roots, the association has actively aimed to strengthen its mission of fostering Egyptian history and culture to all Concordians.

By being nonaligned, both religiously and politically, CESA attracts members from a diverse student body. CESA has appealed to over 300 students, who today make an impressive membership that continues to grow.

Art Matters Festival

March 2 - 18

Art Festivals at Concordia, a fine tradition

Concordia's first creative arts festival began in 1975 when University Senate established a Committee for Creative Work in the Arts. The Committee would extend the existing Board of Governors Medals for Creative Work in the Arts that were well established on the SGW campus. The Committee developed and brought into being the Concordia University Festival of the Arts. At the first Festival held in March 1976 there were 150 entries in several categories, performances, exhibitions, and nineteen awards of $100 each for. The festival ran for six years until 1981 when interest and participation dropped and support waned.

The student-run and University-funded Art Matters emerged in 2001 with a creative bang! It was open to all students and every type of art and was conceived as an opportunity to bring students together and to showcase their talent in a professional way. The first Art Matters took place in many venues across the University and featured 80 projects involving 400 students. Art Matters is now an annual celebration of Concordia artists. The two-week multidisciplinary festival provides a setting for student artwork with many performances and exhibits throughout the Loyola and SGW Campuses and at many other venues in the city. It invites innovation, diversity, and cooperative projects. Some of the work has sparked animated controversy and dialogue. Student volunteers organize and run Art Matters, providing Concordia's emerging artists with the opportunity to develop the practical skills they will need to fund, promote, and bring their art to the public. Art Matters creates a celebration of art at Concordia.

Sports

Athletic Banquet

Askren, Donovan named top athletes

Wrestler Hana Askren and linebacker Patrick Donovan were named the Concordia Athletes of the Year at a gala awards dinner attended by 400 people on Wednesday, April 11.

Askren may have been new to the Concordia Department of Recreation and Athletics but she quickly made a name for herself. Competing in the 48-kilo weight class, she won a gold medal at the CIS national wrestling championships in Saskatoon in March. She dominated her three preliminary matches and the gold medal event. She was also named the outstanding female wrestler at the championship. Now her focus is on qualifying for the Olympic Games next year in Beijing, China. She recently became a citizen of Israel and hopes to represent her new country. With a BA in Italian Studies and an MA in Arabic Literature, she came to Concordia last September. She is studying for a Ph.D. in Humanities.

Donovan returned to the Concordia Stingers in 2006 with a mission. He wanted to be better than he was in his 2005 President's Trophy winning season. He wanted to best every play, every bench press and every film analysis. Donovan met or surpassed every goal he set this season. Once again he was named the outstanding defensive player in the country, he was a first team all-Canadian, a Quebec all-star and the most valuable player on the Stingers.

In early April, he reached a new level. Donovan was named the outstanding male athlete in Quebec university sport and will represent Concordia and Quebec at the BLG Awards in Calgary on April 29 and 30. The event will be broadcast on TSN in May. He is one of four finalists for outstanding male athlete in Canada.

Donovan finishes his career at Concordia as one of the most accomplished male athletes in the 32-year history of the Stingers.

A complete list of award winners:

In Memorium

In 2007 two of our Concordia Stinger teams mourned the loss of a teammate. Ryan Francis of the men's rugby team and David Vaillancourt will always be remembered for their love and dedication to their sports. They will be greatly missed by those who competed along side them, fellow students, caring friends and by family.

David Vaillancourt

The Concordia University Department of Recreation and Athletics was deeply saddened by the loss of David Vaillancourt, a 25-year-old student-athlete on Concordia's alpine ski team, who died tragically in March as a result of injuries sustained in a skiing accident.

Vaillancourt, a native of Timmins, Ont., had been with the ski team since the 2004-'05 season. After six races in 2007, he was in 17th place out of 61 male skiers on the Quebec university circuit. He earned his teammates' respect for his positive attitude and fun-loving approach to life. He was an avid athlete who also enjoyed soccer, hunting, fishing and water skiing.

David was a student in the Department of Geography, Planning and Environment. He was an intelligent, pleasant student who was respected for his resilience and his spunk.

Ryan Francis

In January, it was with great sadness that the Concordia Stinger family found itself mourning the tragic death of Ryan Francis, a first-year player with the men's rugby team. He died of heart failure due to a congenital heart defect.

Ryan grew up in Côte St. Luc, Que. and went on to study at Royal West Academy, Marianopolis College and then Concordia, where he was studying Political Science. He played rugby for several years and made many friends with TMR, the Montreal Barbarians, the Montreal Caribou and the Stingers.

A rookie centre, Ryan was admired by his Concordia teammates for his dedication to hard work both on and off the field. He constantly strived for excellence in everything he did. This, coupled with his never-failing joie de vivre, served as a shining example of what it takes to get the most you can out of everyday of your life.

The Concordia Stingers football team enjoyed a strong campaign in 2006. The Stingers posted a 6-2 win-loss record in the regular season, finishing in second place in the Quebec conference. Concordia enjoyed a top 10 ranking most of the year, peaking at the No. 4 spot. The Stingers defeated the Montréal Carabins 23-3 in the league semifinal before losing a hard-fought battle to the Laval Rouge et Or 28-12 in the conference championship.

There were many individual honors for team members. Linebacker Patrick Donovan graduates as the most decorated male athlete in Concordia history. He was awarded the President's Trophy as the outstanding defensive player in Canadian university football. He was also named the Quebec University Male Athlete of the Year and was a finalist for the BLG Award presented every May to the top male university athlete in Canada. At the Stingers' year-end awards banquet he was named Male Athlete of the Year and the Fittest Male Athlete.

Four Stingers received all-Canadian honors. Joining Donovan in this prestigious group are halfback Sammy Okpro, cornerback Moe Sidibe and offensive tackle Keith Dauper (second team). Concordia had eight Quebec all-stars - the four all-Canadians plus defensive tackle Mark Kang, cornerback Sylvester Sarfo, kicker Warren Kean and punter Mike Renaud. The Montreal Alouettes were impressed with some of the athletes' exceptional performances. They signed Renaud and running back Andrew Hamilton to free agent contracts. Also, head coach Gerry McGrath was named the Quebec conference's Coach of the Year, while receiver Nick Scissons was honored as the athlete who best combines football, academics and community service.

Under the guidance of veteran coach John Dore, the Concordia Stingers men's basketball team ran up an overall win-loss record of 26-7 and reached the No. 1 ranking in Canadian Interuniversity Sport (CIS) for the first time in recent memory.

Concordia ran up a 24-3 record against CIS competition, including a 15-1 regular season romp through the Quebec conference. The Stingers won their second Quebec championship in three years with a convincing 84-57 victory over the Laval Rouge et Or before a capacity crowd at Concordia gym. They also disposed of the pesky UQAM Citadins by a score of 84-57 in the conference semifinal.

The strong showing earned the Stingers a berth at the national championships and the top seed. In the first round, Concordia was upset 63-62 by the No. 8-seeded Saint Mary's Huskies. The team bounced back to win their next two games, winning the consolation championship.

There were many individual honors for the Stingers. Captain Patrick Perrotte was a first team CIS all-Canadian, the Quebec conference MVP and a QSSF all-star. Other Quebec all-stars were: Dwayne Buckley, Damian Buckley and Ben Sormonte (second team). Dore was named Quebec Coach of the Year and Dwayne Buckley was named the outstanding defensive player in the conference. Perrotte was also his team's MVP and was honored at the annual athletics banquet with an Award of Distinction for exceptional career contributions to the program.

The Concordia Stingers women's basketball team made big advances in the 2006-'07 season. The young team was very competitive despite finishing last in the Quebec conference with a 5-11 win-loss record. It was a huge improvement over the previous year's 1-15 record. The Stingers hosted a prestigious eight-team tournament in late December that saw some of the best teams in Canada competing at the Loyola gym. Concordia enjoyed a good run at the competition, winning two out of three games and finishing in third place.

First-year guard Krystle Douglas had a big impact on the league. She led the Quebec conference in scoring with 13.3 points a game. She was a QSSF second team all-star. She was also her team's outstanding rookie and was named Concordia's Female Rookie of the Year. Forward Stephanie Ramonas was the MVP on the team.

The Concordia Stingers men's hockey team thrived in a crazy season that was more like a wild rollercoaster ride than a hockey campaign. Every week was an adventure with 15 rookies on the roster and a couple of tough injuries to deal with. The tightly-knit Stingers posted an 8-17-3 record and finished fourth in the OUA Far East conference. The team went on a tremendous tear down the stretch winning four and tying one of its last eight games. The late surge helped secure a playoff spot on the last weekend of the regular season. In the playoffs, Concordia faced the tough McGill Redmen in the division quarterfinals and lost a hard-fought series two games to one.

Captain Trevor Hawkins proved to be a catalyst for the Stingers. The defenceman was the only Concordia player named to the OUA honor roll despite missing seven games with a broken wrist. He was a second team all-star. Rookie defender Jesse Goodsell was impressive in his debut with the Stingers. He was Concordia's rookie of the year and was also named to the OUA and CIS all-rookie teams. High-scoring forward Trevor Blanchard was the Stingers MVP.

It was a difficult season for the 2006-'07 Concordia Stingers women's hockey team, but the young squad showed some flashes of brilliance. The team's strong play at its prestigious 39th annual Theresa Humes tournament in January was a highlight. Concordia defeated the St. Thomas Tommies in the opening round and then upset the powerhouse Toronto Varsity Blues in the semifinal before succumbing to the McGill Martlets 3-1 in the final game.

With 12 first- and second-year players in the lineup, the Stingers posted a 2-16 win-loss record in the Quebec conference. Concordia finished fourth in the conference and battled the first-place Martlets in a best-of-three semifinal series, but eventually lost the conference playoff series two games straight.

Andrea Dolan, the fourth-year captain of the Concordia hockey team was named to the Quebec second team all-stars. Dolan was the team MVP and defender Catherine Desjardins was the team's outstanding rookie. Dolan was also honored as Concordia's top academic athlete and with an award of distinction for her career contributions to the team.

It was another step forward for the 2006 Concordia Stingers women's rugby team. In its second year under the direction of head coach Graeme McGravie, Concordia proved to be a top contender in the Quebec league. In the six-team conference, the Stingers finished in third place with a 3-2 win-loss record and outscored their opponents 201 to 18. The solid campaign came to an end with a hard-fought 10-5 semifinal loss to the powerhouse McGill Martlets.

There were several individual honors for the women's rugby team. Sydney Theriault was named to the women's rugby all-Canadian team. Vanessa Ng and Larissa Andrusyshyn joined Theriault on the Quebec all-star team. Alexandra Olshefsky was Concordia's winner of the Denise Beaudet Award, presented annually to the Stinger female athlete who best combines athletics, academics and community involvement. Theriault was the team's MVP while Robin Hunter was the top rookie.

Women's Rugby

The Concordia Stingers men's rugby team enjoyed a strong 2006 campaign that ended with the Stingers' finished tied in first place with a 7-1 win-loss record in the Quebec conference. In the semifinals, Concordia defeated the Bishop's Gaiters 14-0, advancing to the league championship versus the 7-1 McGill Redmen. On a blustery November day the Stingers fought valiantly but lost a heartbreaker 16-12.

Individual honors went to Scott Gill, Tyler Brimacombe, Tom Moore and Curtis McKinney who were named to the Quebec conference all-star team. Etienne Bouchard-Claisse was the Stingers' MVP while McKinney was the top rookie.

Men's Rugby

It was a challenging year for the 2006 Concordia Stingers men's soccer team, but the enthusiastic squad faced its challenges with great composure. The Stingers posted an 0-9-3 win-loss-tie record in the Quebec conference. Although the team improved every week, its record was not good enough to secure a playoff spot.

Mid-fielder Jason Quinn was the leading scorer on the Stingers with four goals and two assists in 12 games. He was eighth in the conference in goal scoring. Sandro Addesa chipped in with three goals and two assists.

Quinn was the only Stinger to receive conference all-star honors. He was named to the second team. Quinn was the Stingers' MVP and defender Rémi Wallon was the team's outstanding rookie.

Men's Soccer

The 2006 Concordia Stingers women's soccer team enjoyed a solid campaign with an exceptionally young group in the Quebec university conference. With 15 first-year athletes in the fold, head coach Jorge Sanchez's team finished fifth in the eight-team league with a 3-6-5 win-loss tie record.

Top scorers were veteran forward Joanne Barnard with four goals and three assists, while third-year forward and newcomer Karen Stewart each had five goals and two assists.

Quebec second team all-star honors went to Mélanie Poirier and Erica Geertsen. Poirier was also the MVP of women's soccer team, while Stewart, a high scoring forward, was the rookie of the year.

We can see a blackout coming from miles away.

A remarkable satellite-based monitoring system from ABB helps utilities get an early look at potential power outages before they can become wide-spread disturbances. No wonder ABB technologies are installed on over two-thirds of North America's electrical grid. Preventing problems is just one of the ways we deliver competitive advantage to our customers. Over 100,000 power and automation professionals around the world. Over one million solutions delivered every day. Welcome to the world of ABB.
